MANAGEMENT

WHAT IS MANAGEMENT?

HOW INDIVIDUALS, GROUPS, AND ORGANIZATIONS WORK TOGETHER TOWARD A COMMON GOAL. Managers help achieve corporate goals by planning and organizing resources like employees, fiscal assets, and technology in order to maximize shareholder value. Employees need leaders to identify objectives, make decisions, and measure results.

MANAGEMENT INDUSTRIES

HUMAN RESOURCES & TRAINING. Manages employment side of a business; recruitment and hiring; benefits and compensation; employee relations and labor disputes; and training and development.

LEADERSHIP & SUPERVISION. Oversees employees of a business to help run the day-to-day operations. Some supervisors work in sales, manufacturing, retail, hospitality, tourism, and food and beverage occupations.

STRATEGIC PLANNING. Identify the long term goals of a business, gather and analyze competitive trends in the industry and among peer firms, detect deficiencies within a firm and strategies to improve performance. Work extensively with other managers from marketing, finance, accounting, operations, and information technology.

ENTREPRENEURSHIP. Small business ownership is the backbone of free enterprise, a driving force for the economy. On average 75% of new jobs are created by companies with fewer than 500 employees. Most students begin their careers in a small business setting.
